the exclusive Explorers children's club for babies, toddlers and pre-school children for all bookings during weeks outside of school holidays.

Scott Dunn also continues its partnership with Fiona Faulkner, leading children's food expert and author of '25 Foods Kids Hate and How to Get Them Eating 24'. Fiona, who works with London mums including Alice Temperley, Donna Air and others, has also produced menus for the Scott Dunn Explorers children's clubs at Daios Cove in Crete, Pine Cliffs in the Algarve and Verdura in Sicily. Children will have the opportunity to learn new cookery skills, adapted from Fiona's highly praised Toddler Chef and Taste Buddies workshops, used both in schools and by various celebrity mums. Children will also have the opportunity to discover fruits and vegetables indigenous to their Scott Dunn Explorers holiday destination and, in keeping with the British love of baking, they can also learn how to make their own bread as well as create their own cakes, cookies and treats.

Scott Dunn Explorers Clubs have surged in popularity due to the fantastic childcare and tailored activity programmes. They are not just somewhere to leave children for the day; they are environments where children make new friends, learn new skills and explore their imagination as they become inventors, artists, adventurers, sporting heroes and chefs.

In addition to the five current Explorers Clubs in Europe that are located at Daios Cove in Crete, Pine Cliffs in the Algarve, Verdura in Sicily and Almyra and Anassa in Cyprus, Scott Dunn also has two Explorers Clubs in the Alps located in Val d'Isère and Courchevel 1650 and a new Explorers club which opened at Soneva Kiri in Thailand in October 2013. At each Explorers Club the daily activity schedule includes elements of the local culture and children are encouraged to learn new skills through a variety of exciting and fun activities.
