

PRESS RELEASE

HEAD FOR THE HEIGHTS WITH SCOTT DUNN FOR THE BEST SNOW

Whilst there has been a welcome return of the white stuff to the Alps, Scott Dunn holds the golden 'snow-sure' ticket for keen skiers still wishing to hit the slopes this month, with its portfolio spanning across some of Europe's highest ski resorts.

With luxury chalets located in the lofty heights of both Val d'Isère, Zermatt and Courchevel 1850 and hotel options including the new Koh-i-Nor in Val Thorens, which is Europe's highest ski hotel set at an altitude of 2364m – Scott Dunn is on hand to recommend a variety of options for all group sizes and budgets.

Skiers can also benefit from Scott Dunn's free British Airways flights offer, valid for guests booking one of their smaller chalets for weeks departing 26 January or large chalets in Val d'Isère for weeks departing 2, 16 and 23 March 2014. Larger chalets applicable to the offer include the brand new Chalet Genepy (sleeping up to 12) which was completed in December, the iconic Chalet Le Rocher (sleeping up to 14) and the award-winning Chalet Eagle's Nest which is renowned for its stunning views over Val d'Isère.

There is limited availability for February half-term across the top European resorts, but anyone looking to take a chalet in Val d'Isère will still be able to snap up places at Scott Dunn's exclusive Val d'Isère Explorers children's club – the crème de la crème of childcare in the Alps for kids aged four months to thirteen years. Scott Dunn is also the perfect go-to for eliminating this year's late Easter hurdle, with a number of its chalets and hotel partners remaining open into late April 2014.

Scott Dunn's Managing Director Simon Russell comments "It's no secret that recently many resorts have been in need of snowfall, so the natural solution is of course to head to the higher resorts. This December we added three new chalets in Val d'Isère – a resort renowned for great snow – so these have been proving a popular choice."
